

Tata Mumbai Marathon 2020

This was not just another marathon,

This was not just about running,

This was not just meant for fitness.

This was much beyond...

This gave a huge sense of satisfaction and fulfillment as we lent a small hand providing quality education to the under privileged girls thereby empowering them to achieve whatever they wish in life.

This is small step towards women empowerment and while I want to touch millions of hearts and lives, to start with we hope to make a difference to 10,000 – 15,000 Nanhi Kalis.

This year the team was in high spirits and decided to stand by me in my journey not only in the marathon but also with my cause. That's how 5 of us decided to do the half marathon. It was a satisfying feeling that we all completed the Half Marathon, some faster than the others. When you run alone I call it a 'race' but when you run it with the team it is 'grace' as there is no competition and the finish line is for a cause and that is what made it more wonderful. We have crossed many a milestones and this year with Upparwale ka grace we intend to put together a figure that can educate 10,000 – 15,000 girl children. I hope by the end of the month we are able to achieve the target in some form or the other - keeping fingers crossed with a hope that it will get done.

The fact that we are amateur runners is clear in that we are all limping today after having completed the half marathon yesterday. The limp, the aches and the pain will vanish in a couple of days but the thought that we have been a small cog in this significant journey will stay with us for some time as we together are able to script destinies of children giving them a promising future.
